MOTOR POOL ATTENDANT

DEFINITION OF CLASS:

This is manual labor work of a repetitive nature which involves: removing fare boxes from buses, emptying collected fares into mobile collection bins (called vaults) and replacing the fare boxes; driving buses from bus lot to service lanes or refuel areas and other locations; changing displays or restocking literature in buses and transit areas; and performing general utility duties such as picking up litter, shoveling snow, moving boxes/equipment, etc. Employees in this classification are also responsible for performing basic and routine checks of vehicles' fluids and tire pressure. The large majority of contacts for employees in this class is with other employees located in the transit operations and motor pool area, and is for the purpose of receiving instructions and information and responding thereto. Employees in this class are not required to provide public service/assistance to citizens or other groups of people external to the County Government because the work of this class is intended to support the activities of other employees.

Employees in this class are responsible for independently carrying out recurring assignments without instruction after being taught or told the tasks to be performed. Work is periodically checked in progress or directly supervised. Satisfactory performance is assessed by the successful completion of assigned tasks. Specific, detailed guidelines are provided which employees are expected to follow without deviation. The complexity of this class of work is limited by the elementary nature of most of the work, as evidenced by the short periods of time required to learn the tasks to be performed. The impact of properly performed work results in the collection of fares into a mobile vault and the timely completion of duties that support Bus Operators and general motor pool operations. Work involves extended periods of standing and walking, as well as periods of lifting fare boxes, and some bending, reaching and stooping. Most work is performed outside in all types of weather conditions or in a covered bus service facility where employees are exposed to noise, dust, grease, dirt, diesel fumes, diesel particulates and cleaning agents (from the bus cleaning and washing lane).
